TALK ECONOMY.

Saving of Fuel Subject at Big Meeting Last Evening.

MANY OFFICIALS PRESENT

About 125 Men in Transportation Department of Connellville Division Hear Interesting Talks and Discuss the Subject.

The economy of fuel and means of effecting other savings in the operation of trains were discussed at a meeting in the Hyndman building last evening which was attended by about 125 engineers, firemen, conductors and brakemen of the Connellville division. It was an economy session and a number of officials made talks with a view of encouraging the employees to save wherever possible; to keep a closer watch on the use of fuel and oil; to pay close attention to the condition of motive power and rolling stock in order to keep down repair bills and keep up machinery in order to get the best results. The railroad men say they enjoyed the meeting immensely and the officials were more than satisfied with the manner in which the employees received their brief talks.

There was nothing formal about the session. Superintendent G. L. French had issued a notice requesting the railroaders to be present if they were not on their runs and while attendance was not compulsory, the turnout was entirely satisfactory. Superintendent French was late arriving at the meeting, but came immediately after his arrival from a business trip to Pittsburgh. Previous to the arrival Road Foreman of Engines T. E. Miller had the session in charge.

Mr. Miller made the first address. It was rather lengthy but none the less interesting. He dwelt upon the economy of fuel and urged that engineers and firemen, the latter in particular, pay close attention to the use of coal for steaming and to use as little as possible without impairing steaming efficiency of the locomotive. Assistant Trainmaster Smith of Rockwood spoke briefly about the same lines. Assistant Road Foreman of Engines G. N. Cape spoke on a similar topic.

Traveling Fireman Wise directed his remarks to the firemen and gave them clear cut instructions regarding the method of feeding fuel to the locomotives. He offered suggestions that would enable firemen to make steam by using less coal and not working so hard. Even veterans of the left side of the cab found in Mr. Wise's talk some suggestions worthy of trial.

Master Mechanic P. Conniff urged the trainmen to watch the motive power and rolling stock in order that it might be kept up at a high state of efficiency. He showed them that engines steamed easier and with less coal when in good condition than when repairs were not reported promptly and remedied. He told, also, that rolling stock was easier to haul when in perfect trim than when in bad shape.

Division Engineer P. Petri limited his talk to the tidiness of the roadbed and urged the trainmen not to leave drawdrains, brasses and other articles along the right of way, but to bring them to the repair yards.

The meeting was almost at an end when Superintendent French arrived. He spoke briefly and made but passing comment upon the remarks that had preceded him. Mr. French wanted particularly to impress upon the men the necessity for co-operation, and it was along that line he spoke. He talked to them in that manner of which has caused him to be regarded as one of the best Superintendents the Connellville division has ever had. That is the way the railroad men regard him. He told the men he intended they would receive fair treatment at all times and urged them not to hesitate when they believed they had a grievance.

TWO MEN ARE KILLED ON BALTIMORE & OHIO.

H. S. Hersh Struck by No. 49 at Sand Patch and C. F. Houpt Meets a Fearful End at the Somerset Station.

Two men were killed on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in 30 hours ending at midnight last night. One was killed by train No. 19 at Sand Patch and another met a fearful death on the Somerset & Cambria branch about midnight.

The victim at Somerset was Clarence P. Houpt, a well known cement pavement contractor. Houpt had been drinking and the supposition is that he fell asleep on the truck last night and was not noticed before a freight train came by. Houpt was found shortly after midnight directly in front of the Somerset station. His body had been cut in two. Both arms were severed above the elbows and his head was badly cut. Death was instantaneous.

"If you have a complaint, take it to your immediate superior. I am sure he will see that it is adjusted properly. If he doesn't come to me, I will see that you are given a fair hearing and if you have been unjustly treated, you will receive the proper redress," he told the men.

Mr. French spoke in a general way regarding economy. He urged that the railroad men observe rigid economy in every respect and told them that even the nuts and bolts should be watched as closely as the lumps of coal when the men had in mind the precepts taught them at the meeting.

There was an informal discussion during the meeting. Some of the men had questions to ask and they were answered. At times various methods were discussed and debated.

The last speaker was W. N. Schriber, the air brake instructor. He spoke particularly in regard to his department, where, he said, a great saving could be effected if the men gave close attention to it. The meeting adjourned with the men impressed by the desire of the officials to cut down operating expenses as far as possible and to determine to co-operate with them in that respect.

It was reported that the meeting followed a suggestion from the Department of the Interior to all railroads regarding the conservation of coal. This could not be confirmed at the division offices this morning. Chief Clerk W. O. Sengconover stated that the meeting was in line with the policy of the railroad to reduce operating expenses as much as possible and to abolish waste and extravagance in the use of fuel and other material.

Rushing Work on West Virginia Road

At present there are six steam shovels at work on the Buckhannon & Northern railroad, the line that is to be the extension of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad up the Monongahela river through Fayette county and tapping great coal fields in West Virginia.

Williams Brothers & Sales have their shovel in operation opposite Little Falls, one of the big machines of Weaver, Gilmore & Company is plowing the right of way through the federal property at Lock No. 10 and another is at work below Morgantown. The general contractors have a machine at the Jintown hill, while the second has just been put in operation and Hunter & Hinds are digging out the dirt for the second and third miles of the new railroad.

Work on the railroad is being pushed. The right of way has been practically graded while the removal of the dirt from the big Jintown hill, recently blasted away, is progressing with rapidity.

Another Concrete Walk.
Another concrete pavement is being laid on West Main street. Contractors Bettler & Donnelly this morning began work on a walk in front of the Soloson theatre.

and despite his poor health was of a particularly cheerful disposition. He was idolized by his parents, brothers and sister. It was about two weeks ago that the family left the Fort-Cliff, where they had been spending the summer, and started westward by automobile. The lad was taken seriously ill and was rushed home. His father, who was in Oregon at the time, was summoned, and rushed across the continent as rapidly as possible, making the last lap of the journey, from Pittsburgh to Meyersdale, by special train.

The two pools of water at the West Penn power house used at one time as a means of filtering the water for use at the big power station were drained last week.

STATE POLICE IN CONTROL

They Have the Situation Well in Hand Now—District Attorney Is Gathering Evidence and Will Prosecute Vigorously.

United Press Telegram.

COATESVILLE, Pa., Aug. 15.—A policeman on the regular force of this borough was the chosen leader of the mob that burned Zach Walker, the negro slayer of Watchman Rice, according to evidence declared by District Attorney Gawthrop today to be in his possession. The man's name is being withheld until the authorities have arranged all the evidence they have collected and are ready to act.

"Yes, one of the regular police force of Coatesville led that mob," said the District Attorney, when the matter was squarely placed before him today.

According to Gawthrop it may be two weeks before any arrests are made. He realizes the magnitude of the task confronting the authorities and does not intend to act until he is sure of his men. The State police, commanded by Captain Wilhelm, are patrolling the place today and have the situation completely under control. The prisoners, if any arrests are made, will be hurried to West Chester, the county seat, where they will be safe from any attempt that may be made at rescue by their friends.

Graham Replies to Criticism

United Press Telegram.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Replying to the charge that the House committee had dropped its probe of the alleged Controller Bay grant was made today by Chairman Graham, Dem., Ill.

"My experience," he said, "leads me to believe that it is in the interest of truth to make haste slowly. It is the purpose of the chairman, who investigated, to produce the evidence. One reason which has been given for haste is that the President has been assaulted through the newspapers and it is assumed is unjust he should have a speedy vindication.

"This investigation involves property of very great value and public rights of even greater value and the committee is determined to follow where the facts lead, regardless of whom it may hurt or help."

Resident of Somerset County.

PROMINENT IN SCHOOL AFFAIRS

Served Two Terms as County Superintendent and at the Time of His Death He Was an Official of Farmers National Bank at Somerset.

Word was received in Connellville this morning of the death of Elmer Pritts, a widely known resident of Somerset. Mr. Pritts had been ill only since Sunday. All Sunday night and until 12:25 last night when death relieved his suffering Mr. Pritts had been kept alive by the use of oxygen. At the time of his death Mr. Pritts was assistant cashier of the Farmers' National Bank of Somerset and treasurer of several other companies.

Elmer E. Pritts was perhaps best known as an educator throughout Western Pennsylvania. For six years he was County Superintendent of Schools in Somerset county and it was his custom to visit the county institutes in all counties in the Western part of the State. He was well known in Fayette county. Mr. Pritts was born in Somerset township, Somerset county, on November 26, 1861. He was educated in the public schools and for 12 years was a teacher in the schools of the county, six as superintendent of the Somerset borough schools. Then he was elected County Superintendent and at the end of his term succeeded himself. At the close of his second term he could have been re-elected, but chose to accept the offer as Assistant Cashier of the Farmers' National Bank which he has held for several years.

Mr. Pritts is survived by his wife who was Miss Minnie Sipe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sipe of Somerset county, and one daughter Mary Elizabeth. He was treasurer of the Somerset Electric Light, Heat & Power Company and of the Crown Mutual Fire Insurance Company. Family Troubles in Police Court

Champ Miller of the West Side was arrested last evening for being disorderly at home. His wife appeared before Burgess Evans this morning to urge a stiff sentence and intimated a further prosecution before a Justice of the Peace. Miller's two sons appeared and insisted to the Burgess that the father was not wholly to blame for the trouble. Miller paid $3.50 and was discharged.

Jim Walker of Vanderbilt only had $2 and paid that, promising to remit the remaining $1.50 later. He was drunk the night before. Andy Pennebarr only had $1.50, which was not sufficient to tempt the Burgess. Andy is spending 18 hours as the guest of Chief Hetzel.

FOLLIES OF SCIENCE.

Seven Problems That Have So Far Baffled Man's Mighty Brain.
The history of science has seven problems that men in all ages more or less have tried to solve, but which have finally been given up by all. Today they are called follies.

The usual list comprises the following: First, squaring the circle; second, duplication of the cube; third, trisection of an angle; fourth, perpetual motion; fifth, transmutation of metals; sixth, creation of mercury; seventh, elixir of life. Some lists put the philosopher's stone for the last three and then add astrology and magic to make the seven.

To the unlearned it would seem possible to draw a square which shall be exactly equal in area to a given circle, which is the first problem in the list, but we are told by the highest authorities that it is impossible.

An Old Picture Returned to Family

J. J. Barnhart at the Sunday school picnic at Fuller's Grove on Saturday met Mrs. Myrtle Rhoderick of Pittsburgh, a daughter of the late James C. Patterson of Dunbar township, and as a result of the meeting Colonel Barnhart yesterday turned over to Chas. W. Patterson of the Wyman Hotel, a small but splendid picture of Miss Fannie Patterson, a sister of Mrs. Rhoderick and also of Mr. Patterson. Barnhart lived at the Patterson home at the time he enlisted for the Civil War through which he fought four years as a member of the Seventh Pennsylvania Cavalry. When he went to war Fannie Patterson was a tot of about two years and was idolized by Colonel Barnhart. He took with him the picture of the baby who wondered why he had to go away and carried it through his service. Until yesterday he kept it in his possession. At the picnic he happened to mention that he had a splendid picture of Miss Patterson when she was a baby and Mrs. Rhoderick expressed a desire to have it. Barnhart gave it to Charles Patterson yesterday to forward to Mrs. Rhoderick. Miss Patterson died several years ago.

Machine Will Lay Rails and Ties

Ties and rails on the new Western Maryland railroad extension from Cumberland to Connelville are to be laid for the most part by the new track laying machine, which is now at Cumberland and ready for work. One machine will be employed for the entire work, except much track as will be laid by hand, and the machine will place ties and lay the track of about three miles of railroad per day.

The machine automatically places the ties and takes both rails and ties from cars in the rear of the machine and puts them in place. After the track is laid, spikes and adjusters, the machine moves forward over the newly laid track and continues the track laying.

CONTRACTORS BEGIN CURBING

Looks as if Grant Avenue Will Be Paved and Then Be Tied Up to Get the Sewer Down—Council Adjourns Precipitately.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Aug. 15.—Town Council at its meeting last night again allowed the request of the Y. M. C. A. for a sewer down from the Broadwater property on Spring street and Grant avenue to drain the swimming pool in the new association building which they are preparing to erect to go over for another week. In the meantime the contractor began to curb on Grant avenue this morning. The Y. M. C. A. has been very anxious to secure the sewer before the paving of Grant avenue. The disposition of the motion to do something was largely due, it appeared to the desire on the part of some members of Council to avoid any responsibility in the voting for or against the sewer proposition, for the vote seemed to lack the voice of some members. President Hines decided that the motion was lost and refused to call the roll on the demand of G. F. Barclay and J. W. Fitzsimmons. They did not put their request in writing, and the ruling of the President was that the roll call could not be asked for after the vote had been taken. The men appealed from this decision and Secretary Newcomer put the question as to whether or not the decision of the chair should be sustained. There was about the same rounding vote as before, and the secretary decided in the favor of the President's ruling.

Mr. Fitzsimmons then moved that Council adjourn and the affirmative was put and Council broke up with Barclay and Fitzsimmons demanding the taking of the negative vote. The negative side of the question was not put. It had been the intention of Council to meet again next Monday night, and this was lost sight of in the rush. A special meeting will now have to be called if anything is to be done. Incidentally it looks as if Grant avenue will be paved and then the Y. M. C. A. will have their sewer to put down after the bricks are laid, which means another street rutted.

Mr. Pyle brought the subject forward by saying that the Council knew from the visit of a week before by representatives of the association that the latter want a sewer installed to drain the swimming pool, and that the present sewers are not low enough to drain the pool. He continued that he had talked and David Pickard had been over the ground and found that the manhole in Short street near Emerson avenue gives a fall of five feet, while the Broadway sewer will give a fall of over 10 feet. The association, he said, thinks the Short street point all right. The approximate cost of putting in the sewer would be about $100, he thought.

Mr. Fitzsimmons made a motion that the borough put in the sewer from the Y. M. C. A. property down Grant avenue. Mr. Sleighter said he did not believe in putting in extra sewers for anyone, but he would favor the borough giving a permit and the services of an engineer to put the sewer in. Mr. Butler was of the opinion that the Y. M. C. A. can demand sewer accommodations, even if for only the swimming pool. Mr. Findlay said he would be in favor of putting in the sewer if the association will give a day a week free to the boys, a day free to the women and girls and a day free to the men. Mr. Berry said the association will run their building as a source of revenue and ought to build their sewer. Mr. Schaefer said in answer to statements that the association would not be taxable that it will be taxable.

Mr. Fitzsimmons said that if this was some building the Council would fall over itself to help them, and he thought that they could loosen up to the extent of $250 at least for something that is of such benefit to the people at large, and for future generations, when such a splendid public building is to be put up. Mr. Schaefer said that originally he had not looked with great favor on the proposition, but that he had been active in the campaign to raise the funds for the building, and that the building will be distinctly creditable to the town, a great benefit to the people, and that among those who helped were orders in town that have as high as $100 to the fund, so that he thought Council would help along some. This was about all that was done, since the other members kept pretty quiet. The vote being taken was decided against the proposition and nothing more was done. The other business of the evening was routine.

Unknown Man Is Murdered

LATROBE, Aug. 15.—An unknown man, aged about 35, died last night in the Latrobe hospital as the result of injuries said to have been inflicted by men with whom he had gone to a woods in the West Side. His skull was fractured and there were indications that he had been beaten on the head. John Blodick and John Ondolish, coal miners of Dorothy, near here, are in the Latrobe police station and the police are looking for an unknown cripple who may know something of the crime.

The unknown man, believed to be a foreigner, with Blodick, Ondolish and the crippled man, were seen in the streets of the town early in the afternoon by Mary Mitchell, a 14 year old girl, who says she saw one of the men strike another on the head with a club. The girl says she was attracted by means of the man who was being beaten and that one of the men held him to the ground while another wielded a club. The crippled man, she says, crawled into a thicket as she approached. He was bleeding profusely. At a late hour last night the murdered man had not been identified.

Cow is Mislaid Nearly a Week

Special to The Courier.
SCOTTSVILLE, Aug. 15.—"Cows don't seem to be worth anything in this community," said Chief of Police Frank McCudden this morning. "No wonder the price of living is so high when people can mislay a cow and never make an inquiry about her. Last Wednesday a cow was found near a stable here, and was put in to keep her from moving all the grass and flowers on the lawn."

Everyday it has been expected that someone would ask about the animal, but there has been no one come to the police station searching for a lost cow, nor have there been any advertisements seen of its disappearance. The cow is giving milk in a change for her board, but is so strange that no one has asked for her. It used to be that when a cow was lost the owners would drag the police out of bed in the morning to get their cows back to their happy home. But times have changed greatly. Now a cow doesn't seem to be of any importance in the world.

Testing Strata for the Big Dam Proposed on the Cheat River.

Special to The Courier.
MORGANTOWN, Aug. 15.—The Mountain Park Land Company has begun actual work at the site of the proposed Cheat river dam, at a point a short distance north of the State line and not far from Cheat Haven. Gangs of workmen are operating on the lands of G. W. Baker on the east side of Cheat and on the lands of the Southern-Connellsville Coke Company on the west side. The latter location is commonly known as the old Welton place. The Mountain Park company is controlled by the Kuhn interests of Pittsburgh.

The work as it has been carried on so far is for the purpose of determining the nature of the underlying strata at the site of the proposed dam. Already, considerable progress has been made in removing the earth and exposing the rock. In a few days a diamond drill outfit will be on the ground and in operation, and the bed of the river and underlying strata on either bank will be thoroughly explored. In a short time, it will be known what sort of a foundation the promoters will have on which to build their great sixty-foot dam.

The engineer corps are at work in the field, determining levels, distances and accumulating other data, while an extra force is busy compiling the data, and working with titles.

Surveys have been completed for the tract to be condemned at the special term of court this month. A special survey of the Cheat tract, so far as it will be needed, is being made. Other condemnation suits will be instituted as rapidly as the demands of progress in the project require.

In connection with the rush to control the power of Cheat river, the chartering of the Preston County Development Company is of interest. The incorporators are Everhart Blarer, C. C. Clear, A. W. Hawley, Roy Clear and D. B. Davis. It is capitalized at $100,000 and its purpose is to build a dam and furnish electric power in this section. The offices are at Cassens, the offices of the Preston Coal & Coke Company, and the principal works are to be in Pleasant Valley and Grant districts, Preston county.

Learn to Think on Your Feet.
It does not matter whether one wants to be a public speaker or not, a person should have such complete control of himself, should be so self reliant and self poised, that he can get up in any audience, no matter how large or formidable, and express his thoughts clearly and distinctly. In all ages oratory has been regarded as the highest expression of human achievement. Young people, no matter what they intend to be, whether blacksmith or farmer, merchant or physician, should make it a study. Nothing else will call out what is in a man more quickly and more effectively than the constant effort to do his best in speaking before an audience. When one undertakes to think on one's feet and speak extemporaneously before the public the power and the skill of the entire man are put to the severest test.—Success Magazine.

Politics and Politicians.
The next national convention of the Socialist party probably will be held in Milwaukee.

The Socialists of Massachusetts have nominated a complete State ticket headed by James F. Carey of Haverhill for governor.

In all probability the Democrats of Arkansas will determine the State's choice for the presidential nomination at the regular primary election next March.

At a Democratic barbecue in Boston next month Governor Harmon of Ohio will deliver the first public address he has made in the east since he became a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

When the Illinois Federation of Labor meets in annual session in Springfield in October steps will probably be taken to create a new political party for the primary purpose of improving labor conditions.

There is said to be a possibility that Senator Nelson of Minnesota will not be a candidate for re-election next year. He will be 70 years old at the expiration of his present term, in March, 1912, which date will mark the close of his eighteen years of consecutive service in the senate.

The National Progressive Democratic League is to be formally launched within a few weeks, when articles of incorporation will be filed at Trenton, N. J. Colonel William C. Miller of Indianapolis is at the head of the organization which is to be the Democratic party what the National Republican Progressive League, organized last year, is to the Republican party.

The LASH of CIRCUMSTANCE

by HARRY IRVING GREENE
Author of "Yosonde of the Wilderness"
Illustrations by Magruder G. Kautner

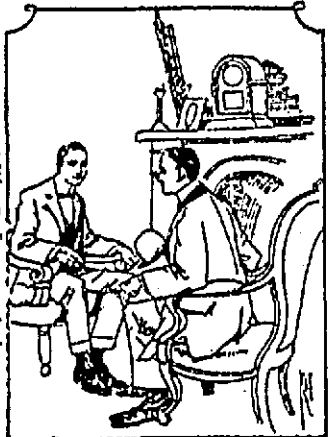

Then, as in a nightmare, I saw the happening of an evil thing. A dozen yards from the wife and when two more leaps would have brought him victory, there came a stumble that sent the great black one crashing to the ground, while over him his more out-lived hurled as a jumper clears a fence. From the vast crowd there arose first a cry, shrill and explosive, followed by an instant of silence and then a raging tumult. I heard an involuntary exclamation from the lips of the woman at my side and turned to her with the cold perspiration bursting from my forehead. Her lips were tightly compressed and she was gazing fixedly at the fallen horse as he arose with difficulty. The speaker was already hurrying about and the mob surging upon the track.

"I guess that race is settled for all time," she said quietly as she snapped her pocket-book shut. "I suppose we might as well be going." Her face resumed its placidity, but she turned it away from me. Half dazed by the suddenness of the catastrophe my hand sought hers in a sympathetic squeeze. She did not respond.

I slipped through the crush back slowly in my chagrin and bitterness. Slowly curving my body I drove her homeward with but a perfunctory attempt at conversation. Even to that who did not reply, and I decided that I had better remain quiet until she had recovered her equilibrium. I had never seen a woman whom I considered a good loser, and there was that in her demerit now which warned me to caution. Silence on the part of the fair sex I had always regarded as ominous, and before her quietness I now sat wretchedly.

CHAPTER VIII.

I know of few things more uncomfortable than for a man to pose before the woman he loves in the garb of a sage, and being suddenly unveiled to realize that he stands revealed to her as a naked fool. That had been asinine enough to all my opinions to her as a self-styled expert upon such an impossible proposition as the winner of a horse race galloped to the marrow. My humiliation was all the more complete for the reason that in this, the first financial transaction in which I had advised her, she had come to grief. No one knew better than I the unforgiveness of my offense. Man may lead woman astray in love and be wiser for it; but in the darkness of many a night he may counsel her out of her hope of a better and yet die with her arms around his neck; he may separate her from the world and still reign as her king, but when he separates her from her pocket-book he becomes a rascal or a clown in her eyes. Just how Mrs. Dece made me know that I had lost caste in her favor was not a thing that could be analyzed, but in some mysterious way she saw it that I knew it. Perhaps it was by the almost imperceptible wreathing of her eyebrows when I chanced to express my views upon some matter; perhaps it was in the occult way some women have of making you uncomfortable when they wish you to be so without discernible physical manifestations on their part, and perhaps it was partially due to my own sensitiveness upon the subject. More than likely it was a compound of the three. But that is my opinion of the thing. What I do know is that I had been told that I was a rascal, and knowing that this would never do, grow desperate. I had never believed that a man could rot a woman's love unless he could command her respect as to his mentality, and I, therefore, determined to restate myself to my former position at any cost. Clearly the only way I could do this would be to reimburse her for her loss in so delicate a manner that she could neither take offense nor refuse. I pondered over the matter for about ten days and determined to take a plunge, sink or swim. I transferred what money I had in the savings bank to my overdrawn checking account.

I had been watching the steady rise of a certain stock upon the exchange for some months with secret covetousness. It pertained to a vast system of underground railways which were to honeycomb the depths beneath the city. The franchise had been secured through political sorcery, and the capital to float the enterprise was being raised by public investment. As suddenly as the mercury mounts under a summer sun, the stock had advanced point by point from a merely nominal sum until it had reached thirty cents on the dollar. The more I pondered upon the yearly increasing value of such a system as the overhead streets became more congested, the more I became convinced that public rumor would be verified and that the stock would soon be at par. Without confiding in any one except my broker, and binding him to secrecy, I marginated a considerable quantity of it and watched its daily rise with a heart that mounted as steadily as my fortunes. A week later I strolled over to see Mrs. Dece.

I had won handsomely, my spirits were effervescent and my old feeling of assurance predominant. I assumed the attitude of a critical man of affairs whose confidence in his own judgment has been verified by his successes in many a jousting bout with the great knights of the financial arena. I leisurely rumbled aloft amongst the larger topics of the public press as I sat in the easy chair which she had bought for my especial comfort. I referred hastily to my private investments and diagnosed the condition of the business world; the Russian wheat crop; the boll weevil in Mississippi cotton; the machinations of the trusts. She did not seem to be particularly impressed and made few comments. At times I even imagined a smile came flickering about her lips, but I proceeded with careless assurance until the time came when I remarked that I must be departing. She did not get up, but she did, in fact, seemed to be thinking about something else; and it was then that I played the card that I had been leading up to throughout the evening.

I opened my pocket-book casually. "By the way, Matlo," I remarked half patronizingly. "I put a little down for you the other day on some stock that I thought was a good thing. It went up, as I had expected, and I closed you out a little profit. Here is your share." I tossed a clearing house certificate for $500 before her. She glanced at it with a quick side-long flash of her eyes and her hand came stealing over mine. "Why, Tom, I don't know what to say—it was so generous—so thoughtful of you. You don't know how much I appreciate it—not the money, you know, but the consideration that prompted it. Yet, really, I do not feel like accepting it when I look none of the risk. You had better keep it for reinvestment." I laughed lightly as I backed away, telling her that it amounted to nothing and that she should keep it for pin money.

She picked it up, folded it carefully and tossed it into a drawer of her secretary. "Very well, if you so wish it. But I shall not spend it, I shall keep it for luck. You once told me that I was an enchantress. We shall see. I am going to use all my black arts towards the conjuring of your fortune. With this magic check as a basis I shall work wonders." The smile she gave me as she closed the drawer was certainly that of an enchantress. She went on almost without pausing.

"You must have a few mouthfuls with me—nothing but coffee and sandwiches, you know. I was just about to order them when you spoke of going." I demurred perfunctorily, reiterating as the cause of my hesitation that it was becoming late. Her little jeweled clock was ticking somewhere back of me and I turned as if to note the hour. Quickly she slipped behind me and placed her fingers over my eyes, the delicious thrill of her touch electrifying me. "Stay," she half whispered from her lips, and her lips close to my ear and the soft hair of her temple brushing my cheek. I sought to close my wrists, but they evaded me magically and with a low laugh she ran to the wall and pressed an electric button. Janet appeared as though conjured from the air.

It was after midnight before we had finished. Through the moonlight I hurried homeward with a heart that sang like an aeolian. For the second time in my life I had kissed her upon the lips; not impassionately as before, but with enough warmth lurking beneath it to cause her to quickly break away from me. And most glorious of all, it had been done with her tacit consent. At least she must have known what was coming, for I had taken both her wrists with a deliberate air of proprietorship and quietly drawn her to me.

"You are beautiful—sweet and tempting beyond any queen. I salute you," I had said. She had made only a show of resistance in the beginning, yet when I displayed a disposition to prolong the embrace she ended it. Then, still retaining her clasp upon my finger ends, she had held herself at arms' length from me for a moment, the color of her cheeks blossoming into deeper richness, her eyes falling before mine.

"Oh, Tom! You must be a good boy and run home at once," she had pleaded, and I had obeyed, well satisfied with my achievement. Over and over in my recollection I fondled the delightful details of the occurrence until beneath my sheets my eyes closed in sleep. Even then my subconsciousness took it up, and all in all I passed the night in a dream reveal.

The few weeks which followed were lived in the most delightful mental exhilaration I had ever experienced. If paradise has joys beyond those of the young successful

The Stage and The Players.

A Scene from "Graustark," to Be Presented at the Soisson Theatre, Saturday, August 19, Matinee and Night.

THE SOISSON.

"Beverly of Graustark." Saturday matinee and night, August 19, the attraction at the Soisson theatre will be the dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's thrilling romance of war, love and laughter, "Beverly." In every city in which this attraction has appeared it has been greeted with large and enthusiastic audiences. The play has a wonderful appealing power and is enthusiastically received by all classes of theatre patrons.

It is a story of war, a story of love and a story of laughter. Plot follows counterplot, amusing situations follow one after the other, and through the whole is running one of the most delightful love stories one has ever had the pleasure of witnessing on the stage. The production has been sumptuously staged and every advantage wooder and speculator, they are sensations inconceivable to the mortal mind. Love and gold were mine. I steadily up, mounted that blessed stock as a skilled mountain climber arises, with never a slip backward and never a cause for worryment on the part of the watchers. Usually my daily winnings ran into the hundreds. In a very little time my profit amounted to $10,000, and fifty thousand, yes, even a hundred thousand more, seemed but the matter of a few minutes. And who but a fool, given safely for a period, it might then be proper for you to ask the fortunate lady.

"But a year seems a lifetime to one who loves her as I do. And she might become tired of waiting," I expostulated.

"Then I would not imagine that she had your best interests at heart, or that she would be a particularly desirable person to choose as a life companion. This is, of course, supposing that she understood the reason for the delay. This is my sisterly advice to you, having no idea, of course, who the charmer may be whom you have in mind." The wisdom of her advice seemed unanswerable and I remained mute before it. My hand falling upon her arm and clasping it longingly was my only reply.

It was the day following this that I met Bruce in his despair over his lost fortune, and it was the next night that Uncle Abner was robbed. I think everything of importance has now been told up to the time I drew LeDue through the door after the departure of the police.

CHAPTER IX.

LeDue was a medium-sized man, wiry of build and tough as whetstone. His eyes were restless and the faint smile which hung habitually about his lips was offset by a hawk-like nose. I had known him over since we had attended the same school as youths. Later on he had naturally gravitated into the service of one of the big detective agencies; had been successful on important cases with a uniformity that mere good luck could not account for, and having thus acquired a reputation had established an agency of his own. I had seen very little of him in the last ten years, but as boys we had been more or less chummy, the difference in our ages having been neutralized by the physical fact of my being considerably larger for my years than was he. I had admired him in those days for his remarkable agility and strength. As it is quality of brain matter which counts rather than quantity, so it is equally true of muscle. And while Billy was not especially powerfully made as far as appearances went, his muscles were like piano wire and the bulk of his competitor in a physical contest was to him a matter of supreme disregard. Moreover, he was shrewd and pleasant to meet and a decent fellow within, and our friendship had wended along smoothly until the inevitable separation of our life paths. As he had never called to see me before, it took no rare instinct on my part to divine that this visit was not purely a social one.

Dr. Courtney passed us in the hall on his way back to his office, and with a farrow salute to him I led my old friend up to my private quarters. He seated himself and I gave him a cigar. No sooner had he got it burning to his satisfaction than he bronched the subject of his visit.

"I have just heard that you have had a robbery of some consequence," he began. I assented with the remark:

"That it was a beastly affair. LeDue's eyes had always impressed me as having the alertness of a watching hawk's, and I now noted that they were flicking about the room as though searching for some lost article and apparently overlooking nothing. He continued:

"I don't suppose under the circumstances that it is necessary for me to state the object of my visit, although I presume I may as well do so. When I got wind of this affair it occurred to me that perhaps I might be of assistance to you professionally, and even if that were not the case that I would be glad to see you again on general principles. So I hurried right over. But now that we have shaken hands and looked each other over, I am anxious to know the particulars of this affair—chiefly catcher's instinct, you know. Mind telling me about it?"

"Not in the least. Glad you came," I returned heartily. Without further ado I briefly outlined the salient facts in the case as they had come under my observation. He then asked me a few questions as to who had possessed the keys, and much like, to which I gave him the same answers that I had the police. He listened quietly and without comment, and then expressed a wish to be introduced to Uncle Abner, whereupon I immediately took him to the adjoining room and made them acquainted. LeDue settled down to business without delay.

Dr. Kalbfuss Goes to Inspect Preserve

Another step toward the establishment of a big game preserve in Western Pennsylvania was taken Saturday when Dr. Joseph Kalbfuss, state chief game protector, passed through Latrobe enroute to Ligonier for an inspection of the preserve roughly located by Commissioner John M. Phillips and Pittsburgh sportsmen over a week ago, in the Westmoreland-Somerset forest reserve.

Dr. Kalbfuss will spend two days on the preserve, finally establishing the lines of the 3,000 or more acres to be enclosed and locating the site for the game protector's camp, and the land to be tilted to furnish food for the deer and birds.

Arrangements have been made to secure 50 deer for the preserve including some Northern stock, as it is larger than the Southern deer. Arrangements will shortly be perfected for the planting of a wild turkey stock and the securing of eggs of wild turkeys to be hatched by hens, under the supervision of the game protector.

CHARLESTON, Pa., Aug. 15.—Following the discharge of Foreman William Eckel, all the employees of the Huesy-Blinn Shovel Company here quit work yesterday morning and the plant is closed. The workmen claimed that Eckel was discharged unjustly.
